Auditor General Dr. Dick Chellah Sichembe talks to Senior Human Resources Management Officer Ms. Mayaba Bbuku-Muzungu

WHILE still on his quest to ensure that he is in touch with his subordinates and there is smooth operations at the work place, the Auditor General Dr. Dick Chellah Sichembe yet again set out on his Management-by-Walking endeavour, this time around at the Head Office.

On Friday 23rd July 2021, Dr. Sichembe conducted the Management-by-Walking to check on the officers from the Corporate Services Division to see how offices are generally kept and how officers were working.

The Auditor General who is a proponent of this management style believes that, taking time to physically be in touch with staff and get first-hand information on the day-to-day running of the Office, was key to ensuring success in any undertaking.

Dr. Sichembe was of the considered view that creating strong synergies between management and staff would contribute greatly to the success of the Office thus it was for this reason that he was interacting with his subordinates regularly.

Whilst interacting with staff, he took note of their concerns regarding what they thought needed to be done to improve the operations. The Auditor General also inspected the state of the office building and furniture being used by staff which he deemed to be key morale and success drivers for an institution if in good condition.

He was hopeful that the office would remain dedicated and resolute to serving the people of Zambia in the best way possible and it will strive to do so through individual and collective effort.

Staff spoken to were elated by this gesture.
